NEW REPUBLICATION

OF THE

EDINBURGH REVIEW,

OR

CRITICAL JOURNAL.

Only one Dollar a year.

OR

25 CENTS A SINGLE NUMBER.

With the January number, the regular republication of the Edinburgh Review has been commenced, and it will hereafter appear, directly after its receipt in this country, in hand some double extra numbers of the New World newspaper. Of the history and high reputation of this great periodical, little need be related to the reader, who possesses the slightest familiarity with the late author of the 19th century. It has of late years owed its chief attractions to the brilliant and powerful articles of Lord Brougham and Thomas Babbington Macaulay; but it has boasted contributions from the pens of Walter Scott, Thomas Moore, William Worsworth, Dr. Paley, Duval, Stevenson, and a host of other great authors. Their success in the Review though inferior in reputation, are scarcely less important and talented for the most profound and eminent scholars in Great Britain are now employed to supply its pages.

Its former editor, Lord Jeffrey, is now the most distinguished Judge on the bench of Scotland, and it has recently been conducted by no less a personage than Col. Napier, author of the History of the Peninsular War.

TERMS.—One Dollar a year, in advance—Every Postmaster or agent who will obtain 5 subscribers, shall receive a sixth copy gratis.
